ELECTRONIC LITERATURE – SELECTED WORKS

Forward Progress on the Fields of Play, hybrid literature, 2023-2024. (submitted for publication)

The Fabric of Everyday Life, generative sound version, 2023, generative poetry, 2021
Exhibition: Hops Ahead, “Interactive work at the intersection of game and art”, MIT Trope Tank, Cambridge, MA. Curators: Clara Fernandez-Vara and Nick Montfort, September 2023

an enigmatic work of art in book form, hybrid literature, Narrabase Press 2022
Exhibition: Electronic Literature Organization Conference and Festival, May 30 - June 1, 2022, Collegio Gallio, Lake Como, Italy

L0ve0ne, web-based hyperfiction, Narrabase Press edition, 2021; Eastgate Web Workshop, 1994; Polish edition: k0cHack0g0s, translated by Mariusz Pisarski and Zuzanna Grochulska.

"...Form and content achieve a near-perfect suture in the first selection in the Eastgate Web Workshop: Judy Malloy's l0ve0ne..." - Rita Raley, Postmodern Culture.

"...The fact that the stories are interlinked creates the feeling of not knowing exactly when they take place. Time is disordered, there is no beginning or end -- it is like a collage. It is, therefore, a story without the typical narrative characteristics (introduction, exposition, denouement). LoveOne is a metaphor about the Internet, where you can find everything, pages for everyone and on any subject. In LoveOne there are also emotions, sex, music, cars, friends, fun, modems, the beach, all mixed up, as if it were an Internet portal..." Joan Campàs, Dichtung-Digital

Merged with the Screen for Days, polyphonic generative poetry, 2020-2021
Exhibition: Platform (Post?) Pandemic, University of Bergen, Electronic Literature Research Group, 2021

The Yellow Bowl, electronic manuscript, 2019;
BASIC version. polyphonic hypertext 1992-1995

“...The Yellow Bowl got at something about the simultaneous tracks of a mental life, and about how our memories and ideas, fictions and physical realities all ping off one another; about how the past and the present, the read and the imagined, can coexist in our minds in an exceptionally vivid way, and indeed be in dialogue with each other and influence our actions from moment to moment every day. It does so more extensively, I think, than any of the other juxtapositional IF or hypertext I’ve mentioned above — and makes me wonder what more could be done in this space.” – Emily Short, Interactive Storytelling

Exhibitions and Performances: ACM Hypertext and Social Media, Institute of Information Systems, Hof University, Germany, September 17-20, 2019; “The Sound of the Hard Disk Saving Data”, soundworks from The Yellow Bowl, The Kino, Cork Ireland, July 17, 2019; Digital Identities, Sheppard Gallery, University of Nevada, February 3 – March 3, 1995, curated by Joseph DeLappe; Fourth International Symposium on Electronic Art (FISEA), Minneapolis, November 3-7, 1993. Readings: San Francisco State University Poetry Center; San Francisco Public Library "Writing and Community Series", May 21, 1994; hosted by Michael Palmer; “Between the Narrator and the Narrative” presented at "Hypertext, Hypermedia: Defining a Fictional Form"(Terence Harpold, chair, Michael Joyce, Carolyn Guyer, Judy Malloy, and Stuart Moulthrop), Modern Languages Association Convention NYC, December 29, 1992.

Arriving Simultaneously on Multiple Far-Flung Systems, generative electronic manuscript, 2018

“...a matrix of constantly changing narrative fragments that eventually tell the story of a woman who worked as a programmer in the 1960’s and 70’s. Its disjointed interface and narrative structure mirror the technology of the time, when stacks of punch cards were used to input data and gaps or alterations in the sequence of cards would lead to unpredictable results.” – Roman Kalinovski, Arcade, 2018.

Short-listed for the 2018 Robert Coover prize for the year's best work of electronic literature;
Exhibitions: Premiere: August, 2018 at the Université du Québec à Montréal, Selected for exhibition at FILE SaoPaulo2020 (but due to COVID, the exhibition was canceled); included in the 2021 NT2 Hypermedia Art and Literature Directory

As if the Memory was a Song: From Ireland with Letters, polyphonic electronic manuscript, 2010-2017

*"For over two decades, Malloy has been spinning together history, fiction, technology, memoir, geography, arts, and love into narrative poems that capture the zeitgeist of the early Internet era. "Judy Malloy and Cathy Marshall know things about hypertext that can only come from very strong engagement. Above all, of course, Forward Anywhere is distinguished by the quality of its language..... Both reflect on the self-conceived demons and intimate terrors of awakened imagination. Both might have something to say, if we are inclined to read

: "Malloy uses the fluidity of the hypertextual medium to create a poetic text, which, in spite of its fragmentation and discontinuity, leads to a reading experience that is very satisfying because it allows the reader greater creativity as to the form the reading will take....In Malloy's text, the visual is transformed into the verbal. The border between text and image dissolves, and image becomes the text." - Jaishree K. Odin, Modern Fiction Studies (MFS)

"Penelope's compounded, disjunctive structure corresponds with and seems to arise from the narrator's restless splitting off of attention, under the opposed attractions of sexual and esthetic desire.....The analogy between the on-screen texts of Penelope and sequences of photographs prompts the reader's reflection up on the nature of each medium...the words of a text screen float on a motile surface, poised for instantaneous change into another, not fully predictable writing." - Barbara Page, Postmodern Culture

UNCLE ROGER is a three part interactive novel which is read by retrieving fictional narrative information. In the first two parts or "files", each reader follows an individual path through the story by searching key elements called "keywords" File 1, A PARTY IN WOODSIDE, is read by searching one keyword. File 2, THE BLUE NOTEBOOK, is read by searching combinations of keywords. The third file, TERMINALS, simulates the narrator's memory patterns. It is read by asking the computer to retrieve narrative information at random.

“Part of what has made this such an endearing and enduring work is Malloy’s instincts for structure and humor, pacing and plot. She chose to write a fragmented story about non-linear and associative things: parties, dreams, human interactions, food, the comings and goings of a cat, and more. She populated this world with a few memorable characters, but none more so than Uncle Roger himself, an always amusing trickster. The smoothly flowing prosy free verse foregrounds the narrative yet it finds moments to punctuate a situation with a well placed line break.” –

Leonardo Flores

“Our work demonstrates that Malloy approached each recreation of Uncle Roger as a unique work of art, conceptualizing it to take advantage of the affordances of the platform or medium on which it would reside and by which the audience would reach it. For close to thirty years, Malloy has kept Uncle Roger alive and accessible to her reading audience. At a time when Flash-based poetry and fiction created less than a decade ago are becoming unreadable on computing devices, this is no small feat.” –

DIGITAL STUDIES: BOOKS

Judy Malloy, Editor, Social Media: Archeology and Poetics, Cambridge, MA: MIT Press, 2016 "Judy Malloy fashions a rich, historic tapestry on the loom of the Internet and contemporary technologies of the twentieth century. We rediscover our human, social roots in this primary source rendering of the interplay of social media and technology." - Vint Cerf, Chief Internet Evangelist, Google

"In this dense and fascinating book, Judy Malloy has assembled a multifaceted collage of essays and articles that examine the evolution of cyberspace, with a focus on the surprising role that artists and writers played, and the ways that their work and experiments provided a foundation and shape for the social media universe we know today.” – Grantmakers in the Arts, GIA Reader

Short-listed for the 2017 Electronic Literature Organization Hayles Prize
Featured in the Rutgers University Libraries 2017 Celebration of Scholarship.

Judy Malloy, ed, Women, Art and Technology, Cambridge, MA: MIT Press, 2003

“...A large and comprehensive collection, it serves to illustrate that there are no boundaries to the human creative impulse and that preconceptions, stereotypes or any other human limitations, be they artistic, cultural or societal are there to be challenged by the artist.” - Jayne Fenton Keane, English Studies Forum

"...many of the artists' papers gathered here stand as frank, revealing, and inspiring expositions of their work, and Judy Malloy is to be congratulated on an important compilation of materials from a most important field.. – Sadie Plant, Tekka
